RELIGIOUS AND POLITICAL INTELLIGENCE, By L. D. Johnson.

By L. D. Johnson.

THE "National Recorder" will contain sixteen quarto pages, with a single or double cover, for one dollar a year. Besidos the miscellanisous reading found in periodicals of this kind, it will be manly devoted to the following object:

First, to give information of all all that may be done in the legislative and executive departments of the general government relating to the interests of cellifon.

In the legislative department it will embrace the spirit of all that may done in Congress on this subject, including the service of chaplians in the Hee and Sonate, with brief sketches of the sermons that may done in Congress on this subject, including the service of chaplians in the Hee and Sonate, with brief sketches of the sermons that may be delivered before Congress.

In the executive department it will embrace all that relates to the chaptain service in the army and may, schools, in seas going vessels, and receiving dipps in acry specie, hospitals, and sollors' and soldiers' homes or asylume. By the facilities for obtaining information at the departments in Washington, and by correspondence with chaptains, we shall he able to produce much that is interesting to the public.

The second object will be to collect statistical information, and to publish, under the head of each State and Torritory, all that relates to the general interests of religion. This will embrace the number of claved, edifica and church members, together with the number added assusibly to each distinct charde organization. We shall enter upon such a plan of correspondence as will enable us to reach this information with more than approximate accuracy, together with many other facts and statistics relating to religions mathers which never enter into the "schedules" of the United States causar.

The third object will be to notice all that is new and interess which never enter into the "schedules" of the United States causar.

The third object will be to notice all that is new and interess which never enter into the "schedules"

year, or the first number only to all who will encome four letters always.

To the editors of all periodicals and newspapers (excepting those which are only political and secular) who will give this prospectus one insertion, and send us the number containing it, we propose to advertise the name and locality of their paper on our cover through one year. To the presidents or principals of all literary institutions who subscribe for the Recorder we will insert the name and place of their institutions, as proposed to editors.

THE CENSOR,

A Monthly Review of the Political Press. " HE JUST AND FEAR NOT."

TO APPROACH that most august tribunal. The Public, before which the most kingly pride must conceal an auxious save, or more nobly confess an humble reverence, is ever an occasion of deep concern. But when the purpose is one of remonstrance, and the motive one of deep carnestness; the very diffidence of the former must impair confidence in the latter; and thus increase the embarrassment.

In our common country there are among men more or less connected with its politics a numerous class who feel a distasts for those insincerities of action and expression in partian contests so indulged by ouston and as transparent by use that the most honorable are tempted to employ them; who are deterred from active support of sound principles of government by a dislike of the prevailing means; who find their sentiments but feelby reflected by the popular press and who apprehend as a consequence a serious demonstration of political principles and private virtue. It is for such that this publication is proposed.

and was approximately and private virtue. It is for such that this publication is proposed.

The general neglect of a duty, however high, authorizes the most unassoming to attempt the performance of it. That a publication of this character is needed, the public has probably as little doubt as the projector. Whether he shall be capable of supplying the want, he no better than the public at this stage of the experiment could deternume. It is acknowledged with regret that a political magazine offerred to the public as an exemplar of absolute candor would be a movely in what is called politics. But it is not perceived upon what principle disinterested men could condemn the project or long suffer it to be singular. The following opinions are held upon general concession:

It to be singular. The following opinions are held upon general concession:

That the "policy" of parties and politicians is not according to the principles of right and wrong; that the great press of the country almost exclusively political, maintains the system by action and or acquisively political, maintains the system by action and or acquisively political, maintains the system by action and or acquisively political, maintains the system by action and or acquisively political, maintains the system by action and or acquisively political, maintains the system of acknowledged deprayity have been countercanced by the men and press of their political party; that the country abounds with wise and virtuous men whose obscurity is a public loss, who would be called by the people to their service if there was any practicable method of selecting them; that every attempt to this end in the nature of organized reform parties has failed and must continue to fail through the same causes that produce the evil, "&c.

The following convictions, among others, have been adopted for advocacy, with abilities yet untried, but with an artless and resolute candor which it is hoped will not altogether dissappoint confidence:

advocacy, with abilities yet untried, but with an articles and resolute candor which it is hoped will not altogether discappinit confluence;

The virtue of the people is the only source of order. Public opinion is still intolerant of hypocrisy and duplicity in general, but tolerates them measurably in politics. The evils above, if unchecked, will surely extend this indulgence, until a general degradation of public sentiment will endanger our institutions, political and social. That these evils exist is chiefly because the principles of morality are systematically ignored in guestions of morals. The main object will be to demonstrate by current examples that in every instance they are one question; that sound politics is practical morality; that, under popular governments, political action is a moral obligation; that as exparted on morals and politics must tend to corrupt private virtue and subvert public order; that those who set forth public acrice in a party as ground for reward should be treated as persons who put a price on their virtues and who hold profit to be the project condition of duty; that moe believed to be seeking office abould be jealously excluded therefrom; that politicians should not be excused for any motives that they cannot justify in public confession; that "political research and condidences are treason against the people; that the political press has the power of reforming the freegoing evils; that editors are generally candid and just in common matters of fact and opinion; that it is their general practice to make politics an exception; but if they continue it they are justify chargeable with the consequent that for the principles, and by selecting—chiefly from the newspapers—deterioration of public morals.

These views will be supported by reasoning solely upon admitted facts and principles, and by selecting—chiefly from the newspapers—without any oteneat of personal disparagement of special condemnation, appropriate examples, each representative or a class and illustrative of a prevalent evil principle, and then applying to such instances, with severe simplicity, the plain rules of justice and com-instances, who severe supports to those great doctrines usually incorporated by the democrate in their party platforms, which as Catholic principles shall command our support, as shall such other doctrines at the progress of mankind may develop.

It is proposed to issue the first number on the ensuing New Year's day. Pamphist form. Three dollars a year. Newspapers throughout the country are expected to exchange, and are requested to publish this announcement. Address
